Taylor Goyette

As a singer-songwriter, Lamb made a name for herself as a vocalist with a rich, emotionally transparent voice, influenced by the likes of Alison Krauss, Miranda Lambert, Carrie Underwood, Thomas Rhett, and Tim McGraw. She's released a succession of successful singles, including "Talk to Me," "Where Do You Go," "Little By Little" - which has seen well over 1 million collective streams on its own - and "They Never Loved You," a duet with now-husband and fellow artist Taylor Goyette. Lamb's most recent single, "Me & the Bar," is a beat-driven tune that pays homage to the important role a place like a bar can play in one's life.

Taylor's songwriting prowess has garnered attention from artists across various genres, and several of his compositions have been picked up by prominent performers. His exceptional ability to weave poignant stories into his songs resonates with both fans and artists alike. In July 2023, one of his most notable achievements to date, came from Lewis and Lee Brice's recent single "Product Of," which Taylor co-wrote. The song has received critical acclaim and currently has over 1 million streams. Not only a masterful songwriter, but Taylor Goyette is also a dynamic performer who brings his songs to life on stage. His live shows are known for their infectious energy and heartfelt delivery. Recently, Taylor had the privilege of sharing the bill with two country music powerhouses, Jason Aldean, and Carly Pearce. Performing alongside such established names not only allowed Taylor to showcase his talent to a broader audience but also served as a testament to his growing influence in the industry.
